Herb Skoog's legacy will live on

It is said that when an elderly person dies, a library closes.

We lose forever their remembrances of our heritage and how things came to be.

Now we have an exception:

Last Saturday we bid farewell to Herb Skoog.

He served his country in WWII, and his community for the rest of his life. His Reflections radio broadcasts recorded the words of our founders. He was not only the spirit of, he was the scribe of, New Braunfels.

Because his programs are archived at our Sophienburg Museum, they will be an enduring historical source.

For that, a grateful city will remember him and his work.

We are blessed. The Herb Skoog Library remains open.
