Just one more worry

In case you need something to worry about, here are the people who would become president if Mr. Biden, for whatever reason, could no longer serve.

First, of course, Kamala Harris, the vice president, who is a California lefty.

Second is Mike Johnson, the speaker of the house, who is off the scale to the right.

Third in line is Patty Murray, the president pro tempore of the Senate. She is a senator from the state of Washington. Ever heard of her?

Thus, the U.S. Succession Summary is, in order, a radical, a reactionary and a rookie.
