

BAD FOR STUDENTS

ACCORDING TO PAGE 7 of the May issue of Bucknell World, some students now “double up in single rooms.” That is not a problem. In the late '50s, all of us in Swartz Hall had roomies. The space was adequate, and we had to learn how to get along.

Then, when those rooms were made singles, students brought in refrigerators and microwaves and televisions. They were self-sufficient, so they were not out socializing.

The new residence hall is good for the architects and contractors but bad for students.
